Dad, I know that you always felt like you weren't good enough or doing well enough to be in my life full-time. I wish you knew that you were. I am grateful that our last conversation was a good one, and grateful for the few memories I do have with you. I want you to know that I have been very successful in life and in my career. My mother always spoke highly of you, even when I would get upset with you, she never uttered a mean word about you. As I look back on my life, and the sweet comments people have made on here about you, it makes me sad that we missed out on eachother. I guess we are both pretty knuckleheaded sometimes. I was upset with you over the last few months, but it made me smile when Steve said to me "You sound like someone I know." However, as I reflect, I understand, and I am not mad anymore, I am at peace and I hope we can good friends in the next life, wherever that may be. I'm sorry I couldn't be there to say a final goodbye, I would have loved to meet everyone and learn more about you. Unfortunately, it was too short of notice of the service and I am still mid-implementation at work for a big client and I just couldn't leave. Mom went though, she said it was nice :) Steve and I are going to get together the next time I am home to Maryland, which I am excited about. Anyways, this is the only place I could think of to speak to you, and I will start rambling now. See you on the flip side,~AlexPS, I included a photo so you could see menow :)

I will remember Scobbie as a nice guy, who spent lots of time at our home with my brothers, too many good times to mention, and I won't ever forget him singing "Mariah" at mine and Tuna's Wedding, My parents thought alot of Scobbie, and he was always welcomed in their home. He was one of a kind. RIP Scobbie.

Scobbie, To my dear friend who I loved as a brother, we had bad times and good times, I helped you with Tony (and he is doing fine, but misses you) so does Teea & Tippy. I nursed you through surgery several times and was happy to do it. I miss all the times we went out to eat with all your friends. I am so sorry that we could not finish the farm house as this was your dream house and yes I would have moved down. We would have had a great Christmas Party this year I would have liked to see the house decorated in Scobbie style. I am so sorry I will not be there tomorrow, I hope you understand as by heart is broken and I need time to adjust. Thank you for all the memories and hope your at peace and free of pain.. With every all my love. Ps. Am taking good care of your beloved dog Tony. Joyce

When you come into this world with another person, my brother, my tripllett there is an unspoken bond. For virtually all of my life , I have been with him, and yet I haven't really, but once a tripllett, always a tripllett. I never thought it could be you, I never wanted it to be, my other half of me just disappeared. I feel like a limb is missing, I am half here, my heart is broken and it hurts so much. A thousand words won't bring you back, I know because I tried, neither will a thousand tears, I know because I tried. I will miss you deeply dear brother, I love you and I knoiw I will see you again and my heart will be mended .Rest in peace and God bless you.
