Just heard the news (Monday).I was fishing in O.C. with my youngest son Jordan.Jord was fist introduced to Vick the Prince (close enough) when he was about 8 or nine years old.I had invited Vic to the beach to do some fishing. He never said weather he was going to come down or not.About 4 in the morning a knock at the door,there was Vic, all 100 lbs of him ready to go!Well he stayed for the week. Had a " few" drinks and told stories to an 8 year old he probably should not have heard for a few more years! Sorry I missed the viewing, and not seeing a lot of old friends.Please accept my sincere regrets.Miss all the Kloseks especially my old fried Judy.Love Steve Lukiewski

I'm sorry you didn't make it Sunday, Steve. All the old friends were there except you. Vic had a wonderful send off.

Other than my own brothers, Vic had a huge musical influence in my life. I remember sitting in the basement of the Andre St. house, looking through his large collection of LPs, and marveling at the cover art and the strange sounding names of the groups. It was all so new and magical to me, being in grade school. And then later in life as I got older, Vic was a friend. Even though I didn't see him as much since he moved, I would try to catch up with him when he visited, and it was always a pleasure seeing him. We have hundreds of memories together."And in the end, the love you take is equal to the love you make." Vic, you'll be missed by more people than you'll ever know.
